2.0 The Visions and Goals of the State for Women's Advancement and Rights

2.1 The gender vision of the 7th Five Year Plan is that of establishing "a country where men and women will have equal opportunities and rights of women will be recognized as equal contributors in economic, social and political development." The mission of the plan is to ensure women's advancement as self-reliant human beings and reduce discriminatory barriers by taking both developmental and institutional measures. Gender equality and women's empowerment agenda for 7th Five year plan is based on pursuing strategies and actions that not only enhance women's capabilities and access to resources and opportunities but also address the barriers in structures and institutions and aim at changing social norms and protecting their rights, issues like control over resources, decision making, reducing institutional bottlenecks and ensuring their mainstream integration. .

The framework for women's empowerment and gender equality comprises of 4 areas of strategic objectives:

Improve women's human capabilities: This deals with women's and girl's access to health care, life expectancy, nutrition, reproductive health, education, information, training, and other services that enables women to achieve better health and educational outcomes. This also includes women's freedom from violence and coercion.

Increase women's economic benefit: This relates to women's access to or control over productive assets, resources, services, skills, property, employment, income, information, technology, financial services, and other economic opportunities including community resources like land, water, forest etc.

Enhance women's voice and agency: This entails women's role as decision makers in public and private spheres including politics and promotion of their leadership is considered here.

Create an enabling environment for women's advancement: The socio-political environment, legal and policy support, and congenial social norms, oversight, enforcement of laws, regular collection of sex-disaggregated data, capacity to develop, implement and monitor gender strategies are the key in this area.

To implement these strategic objectives, seven action areas have been identified that will contribute in achieving results in these four areas:

1. Increase access to human development opportunities
2. Enhance access to and control over productive resources
3. Increase participation and decision making
4. Establish a conducive legal and regulatory environment
5. Improve institutional capacity, accountability and oversight
6. Increase protection and resilience from crisis and shocks
7. Promote positive social norms

2.2 United Nations adopted Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) for transforming the world-free from hunger, poverty, illiteracy by 2030 in which Goal-5 is "to achieve gender equality and empower all women and girls." Bangladesh took leading role amongst the developing world in formulating the SDGs and 11 out of 17 goals are put forward by it. Nine targets are set to achieve the goal 5:

- ❖ End all forms of discrimination against all women and girls everywhere

- ❖ Eliminate all forms of violence against women and girls in the public and private sphere, including trafficking and sexual and other types of exploitation
- ❖ Eliminate all harmful practices, such as child, early and forced marriage and FGM

Bangladesh has taken coordinated plan and started implementation of Sustainable Development Goals.

- 2.3 The vision for National Women Development Policy, 2011 is to create a society in Bangladesh where men and women will have equal opportunities in all spheres of life and will enjoy all the fundamental rights without discrimination. Women will be able to work alongside men to contribute in the development of the country and participate as equals in the mainstream of society and economy. The main goals of the policy are to ensure equality of man and woman in all aspects of state affairs and public life, security for women in all spheres of life, participation of women in economic, political, social, administrative, judicial and all other sectors. The policy provides for elimination of all forms of violence against women and girls, access to safe housing and shelter, taking appropriate steps for disabled women, women of minority community and creating special opportunities for meritorious and creative women for utilizing their talent.
- 2.4 Violence against women is an anathema against her fundamental human rights and this phenomenon is being addressed by the Government through pragmatic policy initiatives. Government has formulated 'Domestic Violence (Protection and Preservation) Rules, 2013' under 'Domestic Violence (Protection and Preservation) Act, 2010' to ensure equal rights and to eliminate all forms of discrimination in all spheres of public life and the State. For the development of women and children, the Government has also formulated National Children Policy, 2011; Children Act, 2013, Prevention and Suppression of Human Trafficking Act, 2012, Hindu Marriage Registration Act, 2012, Early Childhood Care and Development Policy, 2013 and Deoxyribonucleic Acid (DNA) Act, 2014, House-maid Protection Policy, 2015, Child Marriage Prevention Act, 2017.

- 2.5 To provide assistance to the destitute and widow and to raise their livelihood, Government has adopted “National Social Security Strategy, 2015” giving priority to elderly women, poor mothers, widow and vulnerable women. Coverage under social protection is expanded every year with special emphasis on women’s need. The Government has formulated two ‘National Plan of Action’ to implement National Women Development Policy in a bid to eliminate gender discrimination. The Action Plan includes all current and prospective activities for women development by ministries, government agencies, private organizations, NGOs and international organizations. It also contains the time frame for implementation, institutional arrangements and monitoring of these activities. The actions spelt out in the plans are aimed at developing women as an educated and efficient human capital, ensuring active participation of women in the national development initiatives and thus guaranteeing political, social, administrative and economic empowerment of women.

3.0 Progress in the Area of Women’s Advancement and Rights

Bangladesh has made considerable progress in the overall political and social development of women. The major achievements, in this area, are as follows:

- ❖ The Millennium Development Goals (MDG) target of eradicating poverty has already been achieved. It’s estimated that poverty has already declined to 23.2 per cent against the MDG target of 29 per cent. Hard core poverty has been reduced to 12.9 percent. Poverty gap has been reduced to 6.5 in 2010, against the MDG target of reducing it to 8 by 2015. The number of women below poverty line has decreased which is also consistent with national trends. Women without asset and income opportunities usually stay below the poverty line. As evident in the poverty statistics described above, these numbers are reducing sharply.
- ❖ Bangladesh has made significant progress in achieving Millennium Development Goal (MDG) on universal primary education. Gender parity in primary school enrollment has been achieved. Ratio of girls to boys in primary school is 1.06. In 2015, enrollment ratio of girl children in primary schools reached 50.88percent. Net enrollment rate is almost 100 per cent and 98.31 per cent students are completing primary education. Stipend for poor primary students has been increased from 78.00 lakh to 130.00 lakh. Stipend, free distribution of text books and huge investment in education has contributed in achieving the success.

- ❖ Bangladesh has undertaken various measures for improvement of female education in secondary and higher secondary level. As a result, enrolment of girls surpassed boys and the ratio reached to 1: 1.14 in secondary level. In 2015, girl's enrolment rate reached 53.6 per cent. At higher secondary level too, considerable progress has been achieved with girl's enrolment rate being 47.56 per cent. Girl's enrolment rate is higher than that of boys at Madrasa level which is 53.67 per cent. With an aim to provide education for all irrespective of rich and poor, preventing the drop out, making education universal, qualitative and productive, 20.27 crore text books have been distributed for free among students of whom more than half are female.
- ❖ Measures have also been taken in health sector targeting women's need and requirement. As a result, 'under 5'mortality rates dropped to 41 per thousand live births. Maternal mortality rate has also dropped significantly, to 1.7 per thousand live births. Bangladesh has been awarded by the United Nations for achieving the target of reducing the infant mortality.
- ❖ Women Entrepreneurship Development Programme named Joyeeta promotes products and services of women entrepreneurs across the country with a vision of gradually establishing women friendly infrastructure. It also runs a Program named 'Bangladesh in search of Joyeetas' and rewards a total of 25 women in five categories such as 'economically successful women', 'social development contributor women', 'surviving from violence and making good start women', 'successful in education and service' and 'proud mother' of all the upazilas and districts of 7 divisions through competition. Total of 35 women were selected as Joyeeta and honored. Through this program, struggling women of grassroots level are recognized and rewarded which encourages other women to follow suit. Women entrepreneurship fund is created. department of Women Affairs, Jatiyo Mohila Sangstha, Women Chamber of Commerce providing necessary skill development training for boosting women skill and entrepreneurship.
- ❖ Rural Development and Co-operative Division (RD CD) is implementing various projects where 90 to 95 percent beneficiaries are women. Living standard of 21.83 lakh women through "One Home One Farm Project" and about 2.65 lakh women through "Comprehensive Village Development Program (Phase-2) has been raised. Through the Char Livelihoods Program (Char Jibikayon Prokolpa), 4.75 lakh women living in the Brahmaputra and the Jamuna River Basin have crossed the poverty line. Economic empowerment of 6.50 lakh women in chars, haors, water logged areas, cyclone prone coastal areas, monga-affected and poverty stricken hilly areas are being ensured through the project titled "Economic Empowerment of the Poorest in Bangladesh" which are contributing significantly in women's socio-economic advancement. As many as 76,250 poor women are coming out of the clutch of poverty in every year through the initiatives taken in "Integrated Rural Employment Support Project for the Poor Women (IRESPPW)" project. It is being possible to increase the standard of living of 2.05 lakh and 46,800 poor women through "Palli Daridro Bimochon Foundation" and "Small Farmers Development Foundation" respectively. These are all indicative of the social elevation of women.

- ❖ The Local Government Division is implementing nine projects at a cost of Tk. 439.96 crore for the development of socio-economic conditions of destitute and poor women and children. About 3 lacs and 54 thousand recipients have been benefited through these projects in the financial year 2016-17. It is compulsory to include 50 percent women for elderly and disabled allowance as beneficiaries. Women are being imparted with training on different trades for their economic and social upliftment and different departments and organizations are also providing micro credit and small loan to women for their self-employment.

4.0 National Women Development Policy and Gender Responsive Budget

- ❖ For the Implementation of the National Women Development Policy, gender responsive budgeting is an imperative for government to track its own financial resource and for other stakeholders to hold the State accountable on the status of the policy. The Gender Budget Report prepared by the Finance Division alongside the national budget is considered as one of the best global practices. This quantitative and qualitative process of measuring the impact of gender focused budgeting has steered national priorities and interventions in the right direction, managing resources to gender focused programs in different sectors. The gender budget report has also ensured accountability and transparency of government's initiatives for women's advancement. All ministries provide accounts of their achievements and challenges in implementing gender-responsive programs for the fiscal year that show trends and patterns on national level changes in gender equality and women's rights.
- ❖ The Government adopted Medium Term Budget Framework (MTBF) in preparing the national budget. Under MTBF a budget is to be prepared within a medium-term context and should include estimates and projections of revenues, financing and expenditures respectively for the next fiscal year and two subsequent years. Gender issues are embedded in the MTBF process.
- ❖ Under the MTBF approach, a strategic phase of budget planning is undertaken before the detailed annual budget estimate is prepared. Issuance of BC-1 (Budget Circular) every year in late November is the first step in that strategic phase. In the strategic phase of the budgeting cycle, ministries are required to set out their plans for the next three years. Poverty and gender issues have been incorporated into BC-1 as specific items. To assist ministries' reporting capacities, specific poverty and gender formats and guidelines have been developed by Finance Division. Section 3 (Part-A of BC-1) asks the MTBF ministries to consider how their strategies impact poverty and gender. Form 4 (Part-B of BC-1) asks the ministries to consider the extent of poverty and gender impacts of their programs and projects. An expected outcome of the implementation of the formats and guidelines is to strengthen the quality of strategic reporting and to deepen the MTBF process.
- ❖ Making the national budget gender sensitive is basically an approach that implies at least five things. These are: first, acknowledging the economic significance of the household sector and the need for public investment in these activities; Secondly, acknowledging the fact that the roles, responsibilities, and capabilities of men and women are different and must not be stereotyped with a preconceived perception and these roles and responsibilities must not be held rigidly; Thirdly, recognizing that seemingly gender-neutral allocation of budgetary resources can have a different impact on men and women; Fourthly, examining the welfare outcomes of the budget on men and women; and finally, creating an enabling condition for women to participate in the economic growth process.

5.0 Progress in the Area of Gender Budgeting

5.1 In the area of gender budgeting, the Government of Bangladesh has made three important developments which are:

Introduction of gender Analysis in MTBF Process: The government has rolled out Medium Term Budget Framework (MTBF) in formulating the national budget. Gender issues are embedded in the MTBF process. Emphasis is given on the linkages between a ministry's stated objectives and activities and advancement of women's rights. Ministries state in section 3 of BC-1 how their strategic objectives will influence women development. To assess the impact of activities of a Ministry on women's advancement, a set of 14 standards is employed. Access to health care, education, employment, training, social safety, empowerment, increasing social status, access to law and justice etc. are included in the standard.

RCGP Model (Data base): Finance Division developed the Recurrent, Capital, Gender and Poverty (RCGP) Model or database where all expenditure items are disaggregated to indicate what percentage of allocation goes to benefit women. The gender and poverty proportioned percentage data for both recurrent and development budget is estimated separately from a standard defined logic incorporated in database. The proportion of women work force serves as the basis for computing women's allocation in non-development budget. For the development projects, a percentage is assigned to each indicating what proportion of total expenditure will benefit directly women, based on the 14 standards for assessing gender impact. Allocation for women development for both recurrent and development budgets are generated and presented in the gender budget report for ministries and divisions.

Gender Budget Report: Each year, the government is presenting to the national parliament a gender budget report that explains the policies and strategies for advancement of women, activities of various ministries/divisions that have implications on women development, KPIs connected with female welfare attained, major achievement for uplifting women's rights, allocation for women development etc. In the first year (FY2009-10) such analysis was done for four ministries. Gender budget report of 2017-18 fiscal years contains analysis of women's advancement of 43 Ministries/ Divisions. Budgetary estimates of gender budget reports from 2009-10 till date are presented in the following table.

Allocation for women development was Taka 27,248 crore in 2009-10 which increased to Taka 92,765 crore in 2016-17. Average annual growth rate in last 6 years was around 18 percent. Allocation for women's advancement compared to total budget is 27 percent during this period. In the fiscal year 2017-18, allocation for women development is Taka 1,12,019 crore which is 27.99 percent of total budget and 5.04 percent of GDP.

- 5.2 In the present report forty-three ministries have been divided into three sections. They are (i) Empowering Women and Enhancing their Social Dignity, (ii) Improving Women's Productivity and Participation in Labor Market and (iii) Widening Women's Effective Access to General Public Sector Services and Income Generating Activities. In section (i), activities of nine gender focused ministries are analyzed. Section (ii) analyses nine ministries which have comparatively less focused. Finally, section (iii) reflects the activities of twenty-five ministries in relation to women's advancement. The reports of nine ministries in section one however, have been presented elaborately keeping in mind their multifarious involvement in different sectors for women's development. Particularly these reports attempted to reveal the importance of the Ministry in the national economy and society and its constitutional and policy obligations at the beginning. Subsequently the functions of the concerned ministry and its relevant policies with special attention to their focus on women's advancement have been discussed. Then ministry specific national policy directives in relation to women's advancement are identified as mentioned in the National Women Development Policy 2011 and in Five Year Plan. Hence, these directives are compared with the strategic objectives and the activities of the ministry to identify gender gaps in the activities of the ministry. Then a set of recommendations are put forward to address these gaps. Some of these recommendations could be addressed simply through engendering current activities of the ministry and the rests could be attained through fresh initiatives.
